TUCK'S POST CARD

CARTE POSTALE

THE CATHEDRAL, WINCHESTER, stands in a spacious Close, crossed by a magnificent avenue of elms and lime trees leading up to the West Front. It is the longest mediæval church in Europe [526 feet]. The exterior is plain and severe, and the low heavy lantern tower is almost the only relief to its great length. But it is "all glorious within," and the richness and grandeur of the interior amply atone for external plainness, and make it incomparably the first among English Minsters.
